

Hi LaVon,

I think it will be a bit longer before we move into it. The guys laid more brick for the foundation today, I think the next step is an inspection on Monday, then they lower it onto the foundation. Craig is doing a better job of trenching with the new septic system than all the gophers ever did so we for sure look like a real construction zone! It's fascinating to watch the progress and being able to stay in the old house has reduced the stress of it all immensely. We finally got inside the home and OMG Goodness! I knew the fireplace was beautiful but to see it up close is better yet! Love the dormer window! Love the siding! Love the master bedroom with the retreat! Love the tile shower! Love the counter tops! Love the little guest closet and the broom closet! Can you tell we pretty much love this house??

With your help I think all the choices we made are spot on and thank you for your patience and redoing the purchase agreement 100 times! The porch off the kitchen is perfect and when Craig gets his porch on, it will be even more special.

I could keep going on but you are welcome to come & see the fruits of your labor anytime!

Thanks LaVon for all your expert help!

Marsha
